

The David Brown Book Company presents...

SALE BOOKS ON ANCIENT EGYPT

Welcome to the largest and finest selection of Egypt-related sale books anywhere in the world!

The following pages contain hundreds of reduced-price titles on Ancient Egypt, the vast majority of which are offered at less than half the current publisher's selling price.

The selection include everything I could find in our warehouse that might possibly interest you and where we had at least a couple of copies left. The scarcity of some of the books ought to encourage you to act quickly if you feel a frisson of temptation. Often when we sell out of a sale book, it is impossible to get more copies at such good prices.

I hope you enjoy this catalog enough to send in an order. You can do so by mail, fax, phone or online. We would love to hear from you!

With best regards,

Ian Stevens

The Oxford History of the Biblical World

edited by Michael D. Coogan

For more than a century, archeologists have been unearthing the tombs, temples, texts, and artifacts of the ancient Near East and the Mediterranean world. Using new approaches, contemporary scholars have begun to synthesize this material with the biblical traditions. The Oxford History of the Biblical World incorporates the best of this scholarship, and in chronologically ordered chapters presents the reader with a readable and integrated study of the history, art, architecture, languages, literatures, and religion of biblical Israel and early Judaism and Christianity in their larger cultural contexts. The authors also examine such issues as the roles of women, the tensions between urban and rural settings, royal and kinship social structures, and official and popular religions of the region. Readers will find that 200 photographs, line drawings, and maps as well as an insert containing 25 color photographs vividly illustrate the history discussed.

672p, 142 photos (Oxford UP 1998) hardback, $65.00. Reduced to $19.98

by Bernard V. Bothmer, edited by Emma Swan Hall

Bernard V. Bothmer was a leading Egyptologist and art historian of the mid-twentieth century. Born in Berlin, he emigrated to America in 1941, and soon become an assistant curator of Ancient Art at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. In 1950 Bothmer received a small grant to go to Egypt, to familiarize himself with the Cairo Museum and the archaeological sites, and to visit and study the places where the Harvard University-Museum of Fine Arts Egyptian Expedition had done its fieldwork before the War. It was his first visit to Egypt. In this book, his diary of the trip, Bothmer details all the places he visited, from Aswan in the south to Saqqara in the north, and the people he met along the trains and donkeys to the Hotel Luxor, and alludes to the political and social circumstances surrounding the practice of archaeology in Egypt in the middle of the 20th century.

Myos Hormos - Quseir al-Qadim

Roman and Islamic Ports on the Red Sea,

Volume 1: The Survey and Report on the Excavations edited by David Peacock and Lucy Blue

Between 1999 and 2003, the University of Southampton conducted excavations at the site of Quseir al-Qadim. This excavation was prompted by the idea that the site was not the minor port of Leucos Limen - as had been thought by previous excavators from the University of Chicago - but the important site of Myos Hormos. This site, in tandem with its sister harbour at Berenike, saw the bulk of Rome's trade with India and the East. The present volume deals with the survey and excavation of the site, with volumes on the finds to appear at a later date.

Invention and Innovation

The Social Context of Technological Change II, Egypt, the Aegean and the Near East, 1650-1150 B.C.

edited by Janine Bourriau and Jacke Phillips

In September 2002, a second workshop on the theme of the social context of technological change was held at the McDonald Institute for Archaeological Research, University of Cambridge. Discussion has been the core of these meetings so far, with the aim being to relate the results of the specialist investigator to broad historical questions concerning the nature and development of ancient societies. The papers presented here address a wider context: geographically, with the inclusion of the Aegean and thematically, with papers on natural products and raw materials. The time frame remains the same in covering the Late Bronze Age/New Kingdom. The majority of the papers draw on Egyptian evidence, and illustrate a multiplicity of approaches to the problems set by ancient technologies: modelling, methodology of art history and archaeology applied to a problematic group of artefacts, integration of archaeological and textual sources, and the application of the results scientific analysis to illuminate ancient technology.
