Spells for Eternity
The Ancient Egyptian Book of the Dead
by John H Taylor
For most ancient Egyptians, death was not an end; it was merely the entering of a new phase of being. The way to eternal paradise, however, was littered with obstacles, dangers and challenges, which could only be overcome with magical spells. Collections of these, known today as the Book of the Dead, were buried with the deceased to empower, protect and sustain him in the afterlife. Written on papyrus rolls and often beautifully illustrated, they provide a graphic and fascinating insight into ancient Egyptian funerary rituals and beliefs about the underworld. Including details of the finely painted vignettes, this visually stunning book takes the reader on a remarkable journey from tomb to eternity.

Poetry and Culture in Middle Kingdom Egypt
A Dark Side to Perfection
by R B Parkinson
The Middle Kingdom (c.1940—1640 BC) was a golden age of Ancient Egyptian writing. This pioneering book is the first comprehensive study of this literary legacy. Middle Kingdom poems have often been regarded as propaganda for the ruling dynasty. This study radically reassesses their cultural role, drawing on recent studies of the individual texts and on general developments in literary criticism, to argue that they were entertainments that voiced potentially dissident views while also being integral to elite culture. The book explores literature's status as a differentiated form of discourse, suggesting what social practices made its role possible and offering an innovative model for the reader's engagement with these subtle and complex ancient works.

The Kushite Cemetery of Sanam
A Non-Royal Burial Ground of the Nubian Capital, ca 800–600 BC
by Angelika Lohwasser
The cemetery of Sanam in Nubia was excavated in 1912 by Francis L. Griffith. The results were never fully published but the excavation records are preserved in Oxford, UK. This study evaluates these records, yielding a detailed view on the Nubian society and its burial customs at the beginning of a new African empire. 160p, illus (Golden House Publications 2010) paperback, 9781906137168, $39.95. The Question of Evil in Ancient Egypt by Mpay Kemboly, S.J.
This book examines relevant sources from the Old Kingdom Pyramid Texts (c. 24th century BCE) to the Graeco-Roman Period inscriptions (2nd century CE) in order to understand the way the ancient Egyptians tackled the question of the origin of evil in the world. It also investigates whether the world was perfect or imperfect since its beginning. Scholars addressing these questions are generally of two categories: those advocating the pre-existent character of evil and asserting therefore that the world was not perfect since its creation, and those who plead for the contingent nature of evil and thus imply that the world was created perfect at the beginning but was marred afterwards by various protagonists other than the creator. 415p, fold-out illus (Golden House Publications 2010, GHP Egyptology 12) paperback, 9781906137151, $70.00. The Territory ‘W’ and Related Titles during the Middle Kingdom and Second Intermediate Period
by Barbara Russo
This monograph is an in-depth study on the administrative title ‘district overseer’ (imy-r w) and the term ‘district’ or ‘rural district’ (w) in the Egyptian Middle Kingdom (about 2050 to 1650 BC). The sources demonstrate that the territory ‘w’ was created for some particular administrative needs at the end of the First Intermediate Period. From the historical point of view the management of the ‘w’ fits the organization of the society created in this period. The title is still attested in the later Middle Kingdom but lost it importance. The book contains detailed discussions on the title holders and the attestations of ‘w’. 96p, 8 pls (Golden House Publications 2010, GHP Egyptology 13) paperback, 9781906137182, $55.00. Managing Egypt’s Cultural Heritage edited by Fekri A Hassan, G J Tassie, Aloisia De Trafford, Lawrence Owens and Joris van Wetering
The archaeological record is a finite resource, which is easily destroyed without proper protection. There are an incredible number of sites and monuments everywhere in Egypt, as well as the countless artifacts in museums and storerooms, requiring constant monitoring, protection and maintenance. Managing Egypt’s Cultural Heritage is the first volume in a series of Cultural Heritage Management (CHM) discourses; this groundbreaking book is also the first academic collection of papers dedicated to the practice of CHM in Egypt. The papers in this volume are written by specialists in their fields whose expertise cover many areas of cultural heritage management, from the theoretical to the practical, and from tangible to intangible heritage, from cutting edge technology to simple conservation measures. The periods covered range from the Predynastic to the Coptic and Islamic periods. This volume is an invaluable addition to the library of heritage managers, conservators, archaeologists, lecturers, and anyone interested in preserving Egypt’s cultural and natural heritage. 330p (Golden House Publications 2009, ECHO Discourses on Heritage Management) paperback, 9781906137144, $70.00. A Social Reading of Ramesside Period Votive Stelae
by Karen Exell

This book sets out to explore the meaning of votive stelae to the individuals who dedicated them, and the nature of the events that they commemorate, during the Egyptian Ramesside Period (1295–1069 BC). All stelae can be described as commemorative, utilized to record a variety of types of information, from royal decrees, participation in expeditions and votive activity, to funerary texts securing offerings for the deceased. The Egyptian word for 'stela' is 'wedj,' which also has the meaning ‘proclamation, declaration, order,’ and the stelae allow the information proclaimed to be commemorated eternally. The stelae in this discussion commemorate votive activity by private individuals.

Hieratic Documents from the Ramesside Period in the Egyptian Museum of Cairo
by Rahman Abdel Abdel Samie

This is a publication of 17 ostraca and 2 jar labels from the Valley of the Kings. They all attribute to Th. Davis and Carter/Carnarvon’s excavations. The corpus of this research has revealed that workmen likely exploited the Valley of the Kings as a temporary settlement. This hypothesis is corroborated by the recent excavations that discovered a wide spread of huts throughout the main valley along with its lateral ones. The increase in number of workmen that took place sometime during the ruling years of Ramses IV would have provided the impetus to build these huts as a sort of temporary inhabiting extension to the neighboring settlement of Deir el Medina.

Dienstverpflichtung im alten Aegypten während des Alten und Mittleren Reiches
by Ingelore Hafemann

In this book, the author examines the corvee labor in Old and Middle Kingdom Egypt. Titles, institutions and words used for different categories of the working population are analyzed in context. In the Old Kingdom, the Egyptian king had divine status; for this period there are no signs that people were forced to work. For the Middle Kingdom, harsh punishments for people fleeing state labor are attested, indicating a change in the Egyptian state. The Necropolis of Assiut
A Case Study of Local Egyptian Funerary Culture from the Old Kingdom to the End of the Middle Kingdom
by M Zitman
The history of Assiut in the First Intermediate Period and Middle Kingdom has mainly been written on the basis of its famous nomarchal tombs. This study takes a different approach by focusing on the other funerary remains from Assiut. It is based on a comprehensive collection of the finds from excavations conducted during the first half of the 20th century, including the unpublished work by D.G. Hogarth and E. Schiaparelli. The study presents a survey of the fieldwork conducted, a spatial analysis of the Siutian necropolis, 'new' candidates for hitherto unidentified nomarchal tombs, and a thorough analysis of the available funerary finds, many of which were previously unpublished.

A Palaeographic Study of Early Writing in Egypt
by I Regulski
In trying to reconstruct the early phases of our culture, we rely mostly on sources from the ancient Near East. This is perhaps more true of the history of writing than of any other great cultural accomplishment. It would be unthinkable to even try to sketch the history of writing without taking into consideration the written sources of ancient Egypt. The present study contributes to the research of writing evolution in Egypt as an attempt to collect, describe, and evaluate the earliest attestations of writing from a palaeographic point of view. The book aims to present a thorough investigation of the development of sign forms, from its first appearance around 3250 BC until the reign of Djoser (ca. 2700 BC) at the beginning of Dynasty III. It features the first-ever palaeographic collection of all available signs and inscriptions. The survey permitted reconstruction of the complex process of codification and reform of the Egyptian script that finally resulted in the hieroglyphic writing of the Old Kingdom. 824p (Peeters Publishers, October 2010, Orientalia Lovaniensia Analecta 195) hardback, 9789042923263, $153.00. The Second Intermediate Period (Thirteenth–Seventeenth Dynasties)
Current Research, Future Prospects
by M Marée
During the 18th–16th centuries BC, from the late Middle Kingdom to the early New Kingdom, Pharaonic Egypt went through a period of great political and cultural change. Kings came and went at unprecedented speed, saw their power reduced, and failed to keep the land under one scepter. In the eastern Nile Delta, a community of Asiatic origin proclaimed its own rulers, known later as the Hyksos, who ultimately controlled the entire northern half of Egypt. Kings at Thebes maintained a fragile independence, then went to war and defeated the Hyksos, restoring national unity. Ongoing fieldwork and research have thrown new light on all stages and aspects of this fascinating era. This volume, resulting from an international colloquium at The British Museum, assembles work of prime importance from leading scholars in the field, and will long be a major source of reference for researchers as well as the interested layman. 365p, 133 pls (Peeters Publishers, October 2010, Orientalia Lovaniensia Analecta 192) hardback, 9789042922280, $138.00. Honi Soit Qui Mal y Pense Studien zum pharaonischen, griechisch-römischen und spätantiken Ägypten zu Ehren von Heinz-Josef Thissen edited by H Knuf, C Leitz and D von Recklinghausen
This Festschrift celebrating the 70th birthday of Heinz-Josef Thissen contains over 50 contributions from an international selection of friends, colleagues and students. The book contains articles from various areas of Egyptology, papyrology, Coptology, ancient history and numismatics and reflects the broad spectrum of the work and interests of Thissen. Emphasis is placed on Greco-Roman Egypt. In addition to many sources (religious, literary and scientific texts, letters and documents) in hieroglyphic, hieratic, demotic, Coptic and Greek alphabets published here for the first time, many aspects of Egyptian history, literature and religion, intercultural exchange between Egyptians and Greeks, and the survival of Egyptian culture in the Western and Eastern spiritual world are examined. Papers in German, French, and English. 627p, 111 pls (Peeters Publishers 2010, Orientalia Lovaniensia Analecta 194) hardback, 9789042922280, $138.00. Special Offer $111.00
Eugnoste
Lettre sur le Dieu transcendant (NH III, 3 et V, 1): Commentaire
by A Pasquier
Discovered in a Coptic manuscript from the 4th century, the text called Eugnostos is certainly of older origin and can be dated to the first half of the second century AD. It is characterized by the importance given to the myth of Primeval Man, who is the manifest form of the supreme God. This volume analyzes the version of the Eugnostos text preserved in the Codices III and V from Nag Hammadi. French text.

Elkab and Beyond Studies in Honour of Luc Limme
edited by W Claes, H De Meuelenaere and S Hendrickx
This volume honours Dr Luc Limme with 34 contributions from his friends and colleagues on a wide variety of topics concerning the study of ancient Egypt. The first set of articles focuses on the site of Elkab; among them are reports of fieldwork as well as studies dealing with the more recent history of this important site. Articles in the next section investigate issues of Egyptian history, with an emphasis on the later periods, and include archaeological, art historical, papyrological and philological topics, reflecting Luc Limme’s wide ranging interests in the field of Egyptology.

Sitting Beside Lepsius Studies in Honour of Jaromir Malek at the Griffith Institute edited by Diana Magee, Janine Bourriau and Stephen Quirke
This volume presents contributions from thirty colleagues in honour of Jaromir Malek, for his inspirational role, both in Egyptology more widely, and in the direction of the Topographical Bibliography section of the Griffith Institute, at the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford. The papers reflect the encyclopaedic variety of his interests and research. Several focus on the primary evidence for the past, from Old Kingdom to Late Period sculpture, and from the pyramids to the cat in ancient Egypt. Among the works preserved in museum collections or unearthed in recent excavation, some items are published for the first time, while other papers bring out the wider significance of specific monuments or monument-types. The remaining authors consider an international spectrum of written and pictorial archives, material which Jaromir Malek, more than any of us, has made accessible and taught us to value as primary evidence in particular form.

Le méroïtique et sa famille linguistique
by C Rilly
The linguistic family of Meroitic, the language of the pharaonic kingdom of Meroë/Kush in Sudan, has been a subject of lively discussion for more than a century. Was it Kushite, Nilo-Saharan, or isolated like Sumerian and Etruscan? This volume proposes its placement within a new branch of the linguistic family tree, called “North-west Sudanic” (soudanique oriental nord [SON]). French text.

L’iconographie de la barque processionnelle divine en Égypte au Nouvel Empire
by C Karlshausen
This volume studies the representations and iconography of processional barques carrying the images of gods during the New Kingdom, of which the Bark of Amun is the most well-known example. Working with visual and textual sources, it places the scenes within their chronological and religious context from the Middle Kingdom to Graeco-Roman times. French text.

Hawara in the Graeco-Roman Period Life and Death in a Fayum Village
by I Uytterhoeven

The source material available for the village and necropolis of Hawara covers a period of almost 3000 years, reaching from the 12th Dynasty (ca. 1800 BC) to the Arab Period (10th century AD). Thanks to the archaeological data, literary texts, inscriptions and papyri, Hawara forms an ideal case study for the interdisciplinary research of an Egyptian site. Taking the sources related to the Graeco-Roman occupation phase of Hawara as a starting point, this monograph offers a picture of life and death in this Fayum village. The part dealing with the living pays attention to the topographical situation of the village, its population, administration, economy and religious life. The second part focuses on the dead who were buried on the site by reconstructing their socio-economic position and provenance.

Burial Assemblages of Dynasty 21–25
Chronology — Typology — Developments
by David Aston
This study is an investigation of funerary assemblages of the Third Intermediate Period (1070–664 BC) with a view to dating the objects found in these assemblages more accurately. This is done by providing a corpus of all published Third Intermediate Period tomb groups, and extracting from them a number of object typologies for individual grave goods with a view to assessing their value as a means of dating the tomb groups in which they are found. These typologies are then combined to chart a series of chronological developments throughout the period under review. The first three chapters are devoted to discussions of the tomb groups arranged in geographical order, while the following chapters discuss various types of grave goods, as well as demographic, social, and regional differences.

Tell el-Dab’a XVIII
Die Palastnekropole von Tell el-Dab’a Die Gräber des Areals F/I der Straten d/2 und d/1
by Robert Schiestl
An elite cemetery of the late Middle Kingdom (ca. 1830–1750 BC) was found south of a palatial building at Tell el-Dab’a, the ancient city of Avaris in the northeastern Nile Delta. This so-called palace-necropolis of the area F/I was preceded by an older cemetery, both of which are jointly presented in this volume. All aspects of funerary culture are discussed and contextualized in regard to both Egyptian and to Syro-Palestinian culture. German text.

Cities and Urbanism in Ancient Egypt Papers from a Workshop in November 2006 at the Austrian Academy of Sciences (AAS) edited by Manfred Bietak, Ernst Černý, and Irene Forstner-Müller
This volume is a collection of papers given at a workshop on urban development in Ancient Egypt. The articles cover a wide variety of themes within the frame of this general topic, and aspects of urban development are dealt with from very different points of view. The structure of specific building types, as well as the spacial and social organization of settlements are dealt with, including questions of settlement geography. Specific problems are given consideration, such as entrance protection in Nubian fortresses or the question of external supply versus self-sufficiency at a remote place like Zawiety Umm el-Rakham on the Libyan border. One can find both the analysis of the diachronic development of a specific site throughout history and a general study on urbanism during a given period, Graeco-Roman Egypt.

The Legal Register of Ramesside Private Law Instruments
by Arlette David

Pursuing the study of legal discourse in ancient Egypt during the well-documented 19th and 20th dynasties (circa 1300-1100 BC), this volume describes the legal language used in recording wills and gifts. It is compared with the language of royal decrees and with some examples of legal languages associated with private instruments in Antiquity, the Middle Ages, and modern times. After presentation of the criteria used to establish the corpus and the multiple dilemmas involved, each text is analyzed for its linguistic and graphic features, as well as the lexico-semantic features associated with the categorization system embedded in the script. Related textual categories are dealt with separately. A distinct Ramesside private deeds register (variety of language distinguished according to use) emerges from the analysis, resulting from choices and strategies adapted to a specific legal topic and communicative purpose.

The Bronzes of Ptolemy II Philadelphus
by Wendy A Cheshire

The study of bronzes from Greco-Roman Egypt offers a wide spectrum of possibilities for researchers in Classical Archaeology and Egyptology alike, but the complexity of many interdisciplinary topics can only be well-served through specialized investigations of limited scope. The bronze portrait sculptures of Ptolemy II offer an ideal point of departure for such an investigation, since it was during that king’s rule that court artists consciously created art forms that fused the style, subject matter, and iconography of the artistic heritage of their native subjects with their own Greek traditions.

Das Anzünden der Fackel Untersuchungen zu Spruch 137 des Totenbuches
by Daniela C Luft

This work deals with saying 137 of the Book of the Dead, which accompanied the ritual act of the torch-lighting. All known text sources have been used for the text edition with annotated translation and include a synopsis of the hieroglyphic texts. The author analyzes the text of Tb 137 and then expands the focus to the use of the sayings in many ritual and funerary texts outside the Book of the Dead. Additionally, the use and further adaptation of the texts after their inclusion in the Book of the Dead is presented, as well as interpretations, structural analysis, and an examination of the localization of the saying.

Die Inschriften der Spätzeit Teil III: Die 25. Dynastie (Nubierzeit)
by Karl Jansen-Winkeln

This third volume of Inschriften der Spätzeit consists of seven sections discussing texts of the 25th dynasty. These sections are in turn classified into the periods of the reigning kings: Shabako, Schebitku, Taharka, Tanutamun and some local rulers. In addition to these, there are quite a few texts on the Theban “Wives of the Gods” and their officials, which are undated and can thus not clearly be attributed to a reign of one of these kings. The conclusion of the volume, as with the two preceding volumes, contains a longer section summarizing those inscriptions that can either certainly or probably be attributed to the 25th dynasty but contains no evidence or dating that can be attributed to a particular ruler. The collection also includes many previously unpublished texts, and many older publications have been collated. Detailed indexes facilitate easy searching for monuments in museums, royal and non-royal persons, as well as periods of reign. German text.

Sakrale Architektur im Flachbild Zum Realitätsbezug von Tempeldarstellungen
by Arnulf Schlüter

The ancient Egyptian representation of sacred architecture reflects their structural and functional diversity and is thus of particular interest for the reconstruction of an ancient Egyptian temple landscape. The study examines the representations as they adhere to reality as well as the context given to their ritual actions. The function of the images, as well as their context and their functional or magical-ritual interpretation is considered. The use of renderings of religious architectures are also of great relevance for the understanding of ancient Egyptian images in general. German text.

Das Sahidische Alte und Neue Testament Lieferung 2: sa 621–672 edited by Karlheinz Schüssler

The series Biblia Coptica provides the first systematic compilation of Biblical texts from the Old and New Testaments originating from the old Coptic church of Egypt. Karlheinz Schüssler was able to reconstruct the original structure of various Codices by comparing handwritings of the many pages that were torn from the originals and are now kept in various libraries and museums. Each text contains a detailed description and its place of repository. The work is of fundamental importance to biblical theology/exegesis and to church and canon history. German text.

L’organisation matérielle des cultes dans l’antiquité Table Ronde internationale les 14 et mars 2003 à Paris par le Centre de documentation des droits de l’Antiquité edited by B Agnostou-Canas

This volume presents the proceedings from the round table on the material organization of cults in Antiquity, held by the Centre de Documentation des Droits de l’Antiquité in 2003. Priests, the intermediaries between gods and men, the funding of cults, and the different ways of paying homage to divinity are the main topics on which the 13 contributions in this volume focus. The chronological and geographical range of this book includes Mesopotamia, pharaonic Egypt, classical Athens, Hellenistic and Roman Egypt, Roman Macedonia, the Roman Republic and Empire, Medieval Europe, and Byzantium. El-Deir Nécropoles I La Nécropole Sud
by Francoise Dunand, Jean-Louis Heim and Roger Lichtenberg

The archaeological exploration of El-Deir (Kharga Oasis, Western Egyptian desert) was undertaken by a French team, starting in 1998. During the course of the ten years of work on the site, five necropolises were discovered. A first ensemble is presented in this volume, which will be followed by five more. The study of the human remains, skeletal and mummmified, is combined with analysis of the material constituting the funerary furnishings: wood, basketry, ceramics, textiles. These studies contain a wealth of information on a local population whose funerary customs, which can be observed from the Persian period to the 5th century AD, completely belong to the Egyptian tradition. The tombs clearly show the differences of lifestyle within this population, which on the whole led modest lives of agriculture and handicraft. French text.

Egypt in the Eastern Mediterranean during the Old Kingdom
An Archaeological Perspective
by Karin N Sowada

This study presents a revised view of Egyptian foreign relations in the eastern Mediterranean during the Old Kingdom (3rd–6th Dynasties) based on an extensive analysis of old and new archaeological data, and its relationship to the well-known textual sources. The material demonstrates that while Egypt's most important relationships were with Byblos and the Lebanese coast generally, it was an active participant in the geo-political and economic affairs of the Levant throughout much of the third millennium BCE. 319p, 48 illus, 19 pls (Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht 2009, Orbis Biblicus et Orientalis 237) hardback, 9783525534557, $100.00. Abu Simbel Felsentempel Ramses des Grossen
by Joachim Willeitner
On the shores of Lake Nasser, in the middle of a vast barren landscape, stand the massive rock temples of Ramses II and his wife Nefertari. They are monumental and their lavish magnificence demonstrate the glories of the Egyptian Pharaoh. With support from UNESCO and under the watchful eyes of the interested public, the temples were moved piece by piece in the 1960s to save the petrified remains from the floods of the Nile. Their original site is now submerged by Lake Nasser. Even the history of research at Abu Simbel, from initial investigations to recent archaeological discoveries, are a fascinating read. The numerous large-format photos bring the imagery of the Pharaohs to new life. German text. 144 p., 100 col illus (Philipp von Zabern, October 2010, Zaberns Bildbände zur Archäologie) hardback, 978-3-8053-4226-1, $45.00. Special Offer $36.00

Das Alte Reich
Ägypten von den Anfängen zur Hochkultur by Martin von Falck and Bettina Schmitz
The Roemer- und Pelizaeus-Museum Hildesheim boasts one of the most important collections from the Old Kingdom, the time of the great pyramids, in the whole world. This volume accompanies the permanent exhibition that has been redesigned and brings to life again all those men working for the pharaoh, showing their belief that after dying and transcending death, they would live eternally in the company of their ruler and the gods. German text. 136 p., illus (Philipp von Zabern, September 2010) hardback, 978-3-8053-4073-1, $30.00. Special Offer $24.00

Die Sprache der Pharaonen Grosses Handwörterbuch Ägyptisch–Deutsch
by Rainer Hannig
This dictionary contains the most extensive collection of Ancient Egyptian words from hieroglyphic and hieratic texts ranging from the Old until the New Kingdom, marking the most important periods in Ancient Egyptian cultural history. The rich vocabulary of the time is presented in hieroglyphs, transliteration, and translation, and the meaning of individual words is further elaborated on by including a large collection of collocations, idioms, and important example sentences. Egyptian & German text. 1479 p., illus (Philipp von Zabern 2009, Kulturgeschichte der antiken Welt 64) hardback, 978-3-8053-1771-9, $114.00. Special Offer $92.00

Kleopatra und der Wolkenturm Jugendroman
by Michael Pfrommer
For her 12th birthday, little Mira receives a magical box from her grandfather as a gift: with the help of this box, she travels to Ancient Egypt and meets the young Princess Cleopatra. They become friends, even though Mira is not a girl in the “other” world, but a poisonous cobra, a demon, half human and half animal. Historical Young Adult novel. German text. 165 p. (Philipp von Zabern 2010) hardback, 978-3-8053-3923-0, $23.00. Special Offer $19.00

Die Toten kehren wieder mit dem Wind
by Michael Höveler-Müller Egypt in the year 1362 BC: Horemheb, the ten-year-old son of a poor tenant from the provinces, is forcibly taken from his family and sold to the army of the pharaoh to become a soldier; but the boy is lucky: he gains the favor of the daughter-in-law of the mighty ruler and is accepted at his court. Thus, one of the most dazzling and dramatic careers in Ancient Egypt takes its course. Horemheb’s journey through the higher functions of the country is littered with intrigues and conspiracies, with love, envy, and betrayal. German text. 340 p. (Philipp von Zabern 2009) hardback, 978-3-8053-3057-4, $30.00. Special Offer $24.00
The Giza Plateau Mapping Project Season 2008 Preliminary Report by Mark Lehner, Mohsen Kamel and Ana Tavares
The volume covers the 2008 season of clearing and mapping at the Khentkawes Town (KKT) on the Giza Plateau, and survey, mapping, and excavation of burials in the area. The work at the KKT site encompasses excavations in both the Khentkawes complex and the Menkaure Valley Temple Ante-town. This volume also covers the 2008 results of the 3-D laser scanning of the Djoser Step Pyramid at Saqqara under the combined auspices of Egypt’s Supreme Council of Antiquities, Ancient Egypt Research Associates, Osaka University, and DEVELO Solutions of Osaka, Japan.

Marguerite Nakhla
Legacy to Modern Egyptian Art
by Fr Marcos A Marcos, Helene Moussa and Carolyn M Ramzy Marguerite Nakhla was born in 1908 and passed away in 1977. She is considered one of the pioneers of the twentieth century Modern Egyptian Art Movement. In 1975 she was recognized as the leading Egyptian woman artist in the first half of that century. Her canvases offer us a mosaic of the life that surrounded her. She intentionally used different styles to best interpret the subject matter of the paintings and to best communicate her message(s). Within this diversity, one cannot fail to recognize how the touch of her brush and the use of her colours evoked a deeper meaning in the language and poetry of her art. This book reproduces and discusses eighty of her works. St. Mark’s Coptic Museum is fortunate to have in its collection a series of six biblical scenes in folkloric style in which she reinvented early Coptic art in modern form. Marguerite Nakhla’s legacy is that of an accomplished artist who used her technical skills to create a compelling repertoire of paintings and icons.

Qasr Ibrim
The Greek and Coptic Inscriptions by Adam Lajtar and Jacques van der Vliet
This book contains the publication of the Greek and Coptic inscriptions that were brought to light during archaeological work on the site of Qasr Ibrim (Egyptian Nubia) carried out by the Egypt Exploration Society from 1963 onwards.
330p, 90 col & b/w illus (Journal of Juristic Papyrology, September 2010, Journal of Juristic Papyrology Supplement 13) hardback, 9788392591924, $115.00. Special Offer $92.00

P. Bodmer I Recto
A Land List from the Panopolite Nome in Upper Egypt (after AD 21 3/4)
by Tomasz Derda
In its collection, Bibliotheca Bodmeriana possesses a papyrus, whose verso contains Books V and VI of the Iliad (published by Victor Martin, Papyrus Bodmer I. Homère, Iliade chants 5 et 6, Cologny - Genève 1954). The document published in the present volume was written on the recto of the papyrus, which was subsequently used to make copies of the Iliad. The preserved fragments of P. Bodmer I recto do not allow us to establish precisely the character of the document or to answer the question as to whether this character was identical in all sections. An overview of the contents clearly indicates that the document was not a land register sensu stricto, although it contains some elements typical of documents of this kind.
200p, 50 b/w illus (Journal of Juristic Papyrology, September 2010, Journal of Juristic Papyrology Supplement 14) hardback, 9788392591931, $85.00. Special Offer $68.00

Approaching the Holy Mountain

Art and Liturgy at St. Catherine’s Monastery in the Sinai

edited by S E J Gerstel and Robert S Nelson

The first comprehensive study of the monastery of St. Catherine at Mt Sinai in its full historical, art historical, and religious dimensions, the nineteen collected essays in Approaching the Holy Mountain provide a unique view of the longest continuously inhabited Christian monastery. As an important pilgrimage site, Sinai enjoyed an international reputation in the Middle Ages. The monastery also benefited from regional connections to Egypt and the Holy Land. The essays in this volume examine the pilgrims, monks, artists, builders, and scholars who came to the mountain and left their marks on the monastery and its holdings, as well as the image of the monastery that was promoted outside of Sinai. 590p, 30 col & 139 bw illus (Brepols Publishers, December 2010, Cursor Mundi 11) hardback, 9782503531274, $131.00. Special Offer $105.00

Mélanges à la mémoire de Roland Tefnin

edited by Eugène Warmenbol and Valérie Angenot

This volume of articles in memory of Roland Tefnin (1945–2006) focuses on the architecture and decorative program of the funerary chapels of the tombs of Amenemope (TT 29) and Sennefer (TT 96) in the Theban necropolis. The majority of research is published here for the first time. French text. 224p, 44 col illus (Brepols Publishers 2010, Monumenta Aegyptica 12) paperback, 9782503533940, $99.00. Special Offer $80.00

La tombe de Sétou

by Jean-Marie Kruchten and Luc Delvaux

This is the first complete and comprehensive publication of the tomb of Sétou, the first prophet of Nekhbet at Elkab during the 20th Dynasty. After the history of the discovery of the tomb, its archaeological description, and a stylistic analysis of its painted reliefs, the volume categorizes the extant scenes and analyzes the texts of this richly decorated tomb. French text. 312p, 15 bw illus, 66 bw line art (Brepols Publishers, November 2010, Publications du Comité des Fouilles Belges en Egypte — Elkab 8) paperback, 9782503532868, $124.00. Special Offer $100.00

Abusir XX

Lesser Late Period Tombs at Abusir. The Tomb of Padihor and the Anonymous Tomb R3

by Filip Coppens and Kveta Smoláriková

The present volume offers the results of the excavations in two shaft tombs of small dimensions which have been unearthed in the Late Period (Saite-Persian) cemetery at Abusir. The two tombs represent interesting and important counterparts to the much larger burial enclosures situated nearby. They contribute greatly to our knowledge of the development of the funeral architecture, burial habits and religious thought and help improve our understanding of historical developments during the troubled era of the transition between the Twenty-Sixth and Twenty-Seventh Dynasties. 139p, 30 figs, 25 pls with 60 b/w photos (Czech Institute of Egyptology 2010) paperback, 9788073082956, $85.00. Special Offer $68.00

Minor Tombs in the Royal Necropolis I

by Jaromír Krejcí, Vivienne Gae Callender, Miroslav Verner et al.

This monograph presents a report on the archaeological excavations in the area of the minor tombs clustered around the tombs of the 5th Dynasty kings. It includes the mastaba of Nebtymenneferes, the mastaba of Prince Nakhtare, and the monument known to us now as Lepsius no. 25. 200p (Czech Institute of Egyptology 2008) hardback, 9788073081812, $212.00. Special Offer $170.00

The Scribner in the Place of Truth

The Biography of Egyptologist Jároslav Černý

by Jirina Ruzova

This biography is published on the 40th anniversary of Černý’s death, in gratitude for all his help and advice to Czech Egyptology. In three major areas he has benefited this country: by his many gifts to the Czech Institute Library; by his constant support and advice to Zbynek Zaba, the director who was struggling to keep Czech Egyptology alive in Prague; and most importantly, by advising Czech Egyptologists to begin their excavations at Abusir. Text in Czech and in English. 250p, 21 pls (Czech Institute of Egyptology, October 2010) hardback, 9788072774654, $42.00. Special Offer $34.00
