Volume II: 1350–1850
edited by Joseph E Lowry and Devin J Stewart

This volume contains biographical studies of thirty-eight Arabic literary figures who lived between 1350 and 1850, a neglected period of Arabic literary history. The essays situate the authors and their writings in local contexts of literary and cultural production, from Morocco to Iran, India and Indonesia, in many cases offering the first comprehensive assessments of their lives and works. What emerges from the collection as a whole is a period characterized by institutional change, competition, conspicuous virtuosity, and diversity – when Christian and Shiite writers also played important role.

Volume III: 1850–1950
edited by Roger Allen

This volume deals with the period between the purported earlier phases in the emergence of a movement of cultural revival in the 19th century and the Arabic-speaking world’s achievement of independence in the wake of the conclusion of the Second World War. The essays, which discuss authors in a variety of literary genres and across the spectrum of the region concerned, from Iraq in the East to Tunisia in the West, provide clear evidence of the gradually changing roles of the indigenous and the imported, which are an intrinsic feature of the movement known in Arabic as al-nahda (cultural revival), and the way in which Arab littérateurs chose to respond to the inspiration that such changes inevitably engendered.

402p (Harrassowitz Verlag 2010) hardback, 978-3-447-06141-4, $102.00.

Special Offer $82.00

Literary Biography

These volumes contain entries by leading specialists in the field of Arabic literature studies devoted to the major representatives of the literary heritage of Arabic culture. Each volume attempts to reflect larger movements of cultural development and change within the realms of literary production and commentary during the given period. While the major names associated with each period are to be found, a particular effort has also been made to reflect the geographical diversity of the Arabic-speaking regions in the different historical periods involved.
